WELCOME

Welcome to the 2017 IACAC Annual Conference

Welcome to this year's Beyond Limits: Unleashing Opportunities conference! On behalf of the executive board and the conference planning committee, thank you for being a part of what annually connects us to our mission and each other. Because of you and the work we do together, all students will have an opportunity to attend college. It is because of you that an individual like me had a chance to live a dream and for this I can't say thank you enough.

This year's conference is packed with phenomenal speakers, informative sessions, and outstanding receptions. Below are a few highlights of this year's conference.

- Featured speakers who provide models and inspiration on going beyond limits
- 65 sessions that connect professionals on ways of making an impact through college admission counseling and models of successful leadership
- More than 20 exhibitors to showcase how they can support each institution's educational impact
- Beer & Wine Tasting that will benefit Project Reach and provide an opportunity to mingle with colleagues
- The Annual Membership meeting on Thursday where you have the opportunity to share your opinion and vote in regard to the future of IACAC
- And much more...

I also want to thank our sponsors and advertisers. Your support allows IACAC to be a partner with you and expand our educational impact through our many programs.

Finally, I would like to give a big shout out to this year's Annual Conference Committee. This conference was made possible through the endless hours of work, dedication, and passion of the conference committee. It is through their leadership we all have a chance to leave this year's conference with a vision to go Beyond Limits and Unleash Opportunities. Please take a moment to meet them and say a personal thank you.

As mentioned in my President-Elect speech last year, I want to say thank you to IACAC and all who have encouraged and inspired me in my educational pursuits. I believe we are part of the greatest profession in the world. I believe I'm living a dream made possible by the power of extraordinary people who have impacted my life. I hope you leave this year's conference with a vision to go Beyond Limits and Unleash Opportunities within our educational profession, our colleagues, and most importantly, with our students.

With much appreciation,

Roberto Suarez

Promoting College Access and Student Success with Micro-scholarships

Colleges award billions of dollars in scholarships each year, most of which is awarded at the end of a student's high school career. Research suggests this timing is often too late to impact students' college aspirations, application decisions, and post-secondary outcomes. Learn about how Raise.me is shifting this paradigm to the benefit of students, high school educators, and colleges alike. Raise.me helps students earn college aid starting in 9th grade based on their individual achievements throughout high school. Over 200 colleges (including DePaul, Indiana State, and Dayton) are awarding micro-scholarships to promote college readiness and student success.

Sorrell

Dr. Michael J. Sorrell is the 34th President of Paul Quinn College Under his leadership Paul Quinn has become nationally renowned for its innovative approach to using higher education to address societal problems.

Among the school's numerous accomplishments during President Sorrell's nine-year tenure have been: winning the HBCU of the Year (while being nominated three times), the HBCU Student Government Association of the Year, and the HBCU Business Program of the Year awards; achieving recognition as a member of the President's Higher Education Community Service Honor Roll; creating the New Urban College Model that transformed PQC into the country's only urban Work College and reduced tuition and fees to $14,300; demolishing 15 abandoned campus buildings; partnering with PepsiCo to repurpose the football field into the "WE over Me Farm"; achieving full-accreditation from the Transnational Association of Christian Colleges and Schools (TRACS); and rewriting all institutional fundraising records (including the most seven-figure gifts in school history).

Michael received his J.D. and M.A. in Public Policy from Duke University and his Ed.D. from the University of Pennsylvania (where his dissertation defense was awarded "with Distinction"). While in law school, he was one of the founding members of the Journal of Gender Law & Policy and served as the Vice President of the Duke Bar Association. Michael was a recipient of the Sloan Foundation Graduate Fellowship, which funded his studies at both Harvard University's Kennedy School of Government (as a graduate fellow) and Duke University. He graduated from Oberlin College with a B.A. in Government, served as Secretary-Treasurer of his senior class, was a two-time captain of the men's varsity basketball team, and graduated as the school's fifth all-time leading scorer.

President Sorrell is married to the former Natalie Jenkins. Natalie is an alumna of Spelman College and received her MBA from the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania. They have two wonderful and happy children, Michael Augustus and Sage Louise-Sinclair.

Project Reach is a service project of IACAC with the goal of providing school supplies, college counseling materials, monetary donations, and other resources to benefit students in need. An Illinois high school is selected each year as the beneficiary of the donations. The school is selected based on nominations from IACAC members by the Project Reach Tri-Chairs.

This year Project reach is pleased to announce that we have selected two schools as this year's Project Reach recipients. Both of these schools are dedicated to assist their students in the pursuit of higher education and support our conference theme of Beyond Limits- Unleashing Opportunities.

School A serves students from Chicago's North Lawndale, Garfield Park and Austin neighborhoods. This school serves 760 students of which 95% are low income and 10% have been considered homeless at any given time. School A requires every student to complete at least one Phoenix Rising experience, a college-focused summer enrichment program that helps students—and their families—practice what it will be like to be away at college, before they graduate. Over the past 18 years, more than 80% of their graduates have enrolled in college and more than 80% of those enrolled have either earned a degree or are still working toward one. School A strives to provide the opportunity for each student to go beyond the limits and barriers they face to unleash their full potential.

School B is located in Kane county and serves students in Community Unit School District #300. This school serves 2,553 students of which 59% are low income. School B offers many opportunities for students to reach their potential and go beyond limits but their standout program highlighted is the Success Academy Alternative Learning Opportunities Program (ALOP). This program helps fifth year seniors, older students, and students who for whatever reason did not find success in the traditional school setting complete graduation requirements, obtain a high school diploma, and plan for their futures. They had 26 students graduate this school year who otherwise would most likely have not graduated high school. School B is consistently looking at new initiatives. For example, data from their school shows that Latina students are scoring the lowest on the SAT/PSAT (data that matches a national trend). They are currently in the process of starting a new mentorship program for Latina students to combat this trend.

(GWI) Cultural Taxation with Minimal Representation: Addressing Racial Battle Fatigue in Higher Education

Race, class, and gender are important issues in higher education, therefore hiring diverse staff is considered a benefit to the students, parents, and the campus community. University staff and personnel of color are often tasked with promoting and increasing diversity initiatives. These same individuals who serve as the primary contact for issues pertaining to diversity often find themselves limited to entry level positions and in few instances mid-management positions, creating issues of retention in the field. Using the lens of Critical Race theory, we discuss how university personnel often feel the impact of Racial Battle Fatigue in Higher Education.

IACAC Welcomes NACAC Board Member Jayne Caflin Fonash

Jayne Caflin Fonash is the Director of School Counseling at the Loudoun Academy of Science (VA). Dr. Fonash joined the inaugural faculty of the Academy of Science in 2005, following an eight-year tenure at Potomac Falls High School where she also served as the School Counseling Director and a member of the Charter Faculty and Administrative Leadership Team.

Her work has always been with children and their families; the first twenty years in public and private mental health practice prepared her to assist high school students and families in facing a multitude of real-world challenges. Dr. Fonash spent her first two years in Loudoun County Public Schools as a counselor at Board Run High School. As she made the shift into secondary school guidance and counseling, her goals have been to develop school counseling programs that would encourage students to become self-directive and responsible for their behavior in relation to academic achievement, to prepare students for post-secondary education opportunities, and to advocate for access and equity in the college admission process.

Her membership and active participation in the Potomac and Chesapeake Association for College Admissions Counseling (PCACAC) and the National Association for College Admissions Counseling (NACAC) have helped her to develop the leadership, advocacy and counseling skills necessary to successfully engage counselors, students and parents in the college and career planning process. A Past-President of PCACAC she has served as member of the NACAC Affiliates Presidents Council, a member and Chairperson of the PCACAC Government Relations Committee, a member of the NACAC Government Relations Committee, and currently as a member of the NACAC Board of Directors.

Dr. Fonash was recognized by NACAC as the 2013 recipient of the NACAC Government Relations Award, presented to a NACAC member who has made outstanding efforts in support of policy initiatives that promote equal access to higher education, encourage student achievement and promote counselor excellence, and further the government relations priorities of NACAC members. In 2015 she was recognized by PCACAC as the recipient of the Richard L. Apperson Award, awarded annually to a member whose career embodies the ideals of the association—providing extraordinary service to students, to PCACAC and to the college counseling profession.

Dr. Fonash received a BA in English from Immaculata University, an MA in counseling from Villanova University, and an Ed.D. in Administration and Supervision from the Curry School of the University of Virginia.

Jayne and her husband Pete live in Potomac Falls, Virginia. They have two adult children, Meaghan and Peter, and two grandsons. Jayne is an avid photographer and chef.

Michael Frerichs

Luncheon
Speaker

Michael Frerichs was elected Illinois State Treasurer in November 2014.

In Illinois, the Treasurer is the state's Chief Investment Officer and Frerichs is a Certified Public Finance Officer. The office invests money on behalf of the state and local units of government. Mike also believes in providing individuals with the tools so that they can invest in themselves.

He does this by encouraging savings plans for college and trade school, increasing financial education among all ages, removing barriers to a secure retirement, and protecting residents from predatory companies.

The Treasurer's Office actively manages approximately $25 billion. The investment approach is cautious to ensure the preservation of principal. The investment returns are significant: For every $1 spent to run the office, Mike nets $28 for the state's residents.

In Illinois, the Treasurer's office predates the state's incorporation in 1818. Voters in 1848 chose to make it an elected office. Frerichs is the 74th person to serve in this role. After less than a year in office, Frerichs was elected by his peers across the country to be on the National Association of State Auditors, Comptrollers and Treasurers' Executive Committee. Frerichs also serves as Vice Chairman of National Association of State Treasurer's Legislative Committee as well as Trustee on the Illinois State Board of Investment.

Mike was born in the Downstate farming community of Gifford, Illinois. He graduated from Yale University and spent two years in Taiwan where he taught English to young students and learned to speak Chinese. He returned to Champaign County and launched his own technology business. He was elected to the Champaign County Board and elected Champaign County Auditor. He also served as a volunteer firefighter.

In 2006, Mike was elected Illinois State Senator representing East Central Illinois. As chairman of the Higher Education Committee, Mike championed efforts to make college more affordable. He also served as chairman of the Agriculture and Conservation Committee.

Mike lives in Champaign with his young daughter, Ella.

Retirement is often a time of reflection...

In keeping with the Conference theme of "Unleashing Opportunities," thank you, IACAC, for unleashing so many opportunities for me over the past 16 years. The organization has helped me grow both professionally and personally. What a wonderful institution made up of amazing people who do extraordinary things for so many people.

(GWI) Measuring Online Student Engagement: A Case Study in What Google Analytics Doesn't Know

Utilizing a first-of-its-kind dataset, this session will address lingering questions about online student behavior and the college search. Using individual online behavioral data from multiple institutions, we will discuss how and when students are most engaged with your brand throughout the Student Decision Journey. This case study will address long-standing myths about the college search and show you how to equip your institution to recruit in the petabyte age.

(GWI) Community-Based Organizations and College Partnerships

The annual Scholars College Fair event brings together representatives from over 150 colleges, 15+ community organizations, and almost 900 students each summer in Chicago. The panel will detail the impact and capacity-building potential of collaborative partnerships, and how this creates maximum benefit for our students. This session includes a collaborative stakeholder overview the 2016 event presented as a case-study. Participants will learn about college access and programming models for students from underrepresented populations and gain best practices for forming partnerships.

What We Wish You Knew

What do students want to learn from a college rep? Does a counselor really care who the new president is? Is building a relationship with the professional across the desk important? We both have things that we have been wanting to share with the "other side of the desk." Join us for a lively roundtable discussion about ways we can learn from each other to help ourselves and help our students go beyond limits.

Being an Introvert in an "Extrovert Career"

Some people believe that admissions counselors have to be extroverted individuals, but we know that is not always true. This session will discuss perceptions of what admissions counselors need to be like. It will go over helpful options to stay mentally, emotionally, and physically healthy throughout travel season and beyond. It will also discuss ways for counselors to step outside of their traditional job responsibilities to expand their knowledge about the world of admissions.

The Future of Illinois and State Funding

The Illinois budget continues to be an issue of great concern for our students, families and institutions. Sustainable funding for essential services has been reduced in recent years inflicting great harm on our state. Various revenue sources have been considered by legislative leaders, some good, some not so much. Learn what the current fiscal climate really is in Illinois and what it portends for education.

Using the College Scorecard to Impact College Enrollment Decisions for First Generation and Low-Income Students

The College Scorecard is an interactive tool that provides students, families, and counselors with clear information about U.S. college options in order to facilitate smarter enrollment decisions. In September 2015, the U.S. Department of Education updated the Scorecard to include data on the earnings of federal financial aid recipients, measured 10 years after they entered college. This session, will discuss how the introduction of the Scorecard, has affected student behavior and shaped their college choices. Participants will learn about additional state-specific initiatives to incorporate earnings data into student decision-making, and strategies to implement the use of this tool.

Leveraging Data to Optimize College Acceptance

This panel discussion will chart a proven integrated model that strategically leverages resources to achieve 100% acceptance TO and moving towards 100% graduation FROM college. This session discusses a data driven methodology that leverages 'old school' practices to build trust involving all stakeholders mixed with 'new school' innovations using technology and metrics. As a new high school in the Chicagoland area with a 98% African-American population, our approach has delivered: 100% of each graduating class has been accepted into the nation's best colleges, with retention/persistence rates far exceeding national averages. Join the discussion.

Speaker, Dr. Joyce V. Brown

Dr. Joyce V.
Brown

Endnote
Speaker

Dr. Joyce Brown is a recognized school counseling leader, serving as a teacher, counselor and district director of School Counseling, within Chicago Public Schools. She was the chief architect of the first district-wide four-week summer transition program, Freshman Connection, for 25,000 freshmen and successfully developed and introduced a data driven comprehensive counseling model for 400 high school counselors to repurpose their roles as college counselors. She has designed and implemented numerous programs focused on student achievement resulting in college and career readiness, high school transition practices and counselor leadership, for first generation, low income student populations.

Currently, she provides college and workforce readiness professional development workshops to schools and districts and has served as a consultant to the Department of Education FAFSA Pilot Program, College Board, National Office of School Counselor Advocacy (NOSCA) and the Education Trust. A founding member of the National Consortium for School Counseling and Postsecondary Success (NCSCPS), supporting First Lady Michelle Obama's REACH HIGHER Initiative, she was a panelist on President Obama's, College Opportunity Agenda, Strengthening School Counseling and College Advising, at Harvard University and a panel moderator for the President's College Opportunity Summit, at the White House.

IACAC Summer Institute 2017

The University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign is hosting this year's IACAC Summer Institute, which offers an essential experience to new high school counselors and college admission counselors by providing knowledge, tools, and resources to support in the successful transition to the profession. Summer Institute participants will have a chance to attend multiple workshop-style breakout sessions about the college admission process, featuring relevant topics ranging from career development, financial aid, recruiting, networking, and everything in between. It will also offer opportunities to meet new peers and learn from those who are eager to share their wealth of experience.

The program is from July 26-28, 2017 at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, and will feature professional development opportunities for both high school counselors and college admission professionals. For more information and to register, go to www.iacac.org/si.
